Story

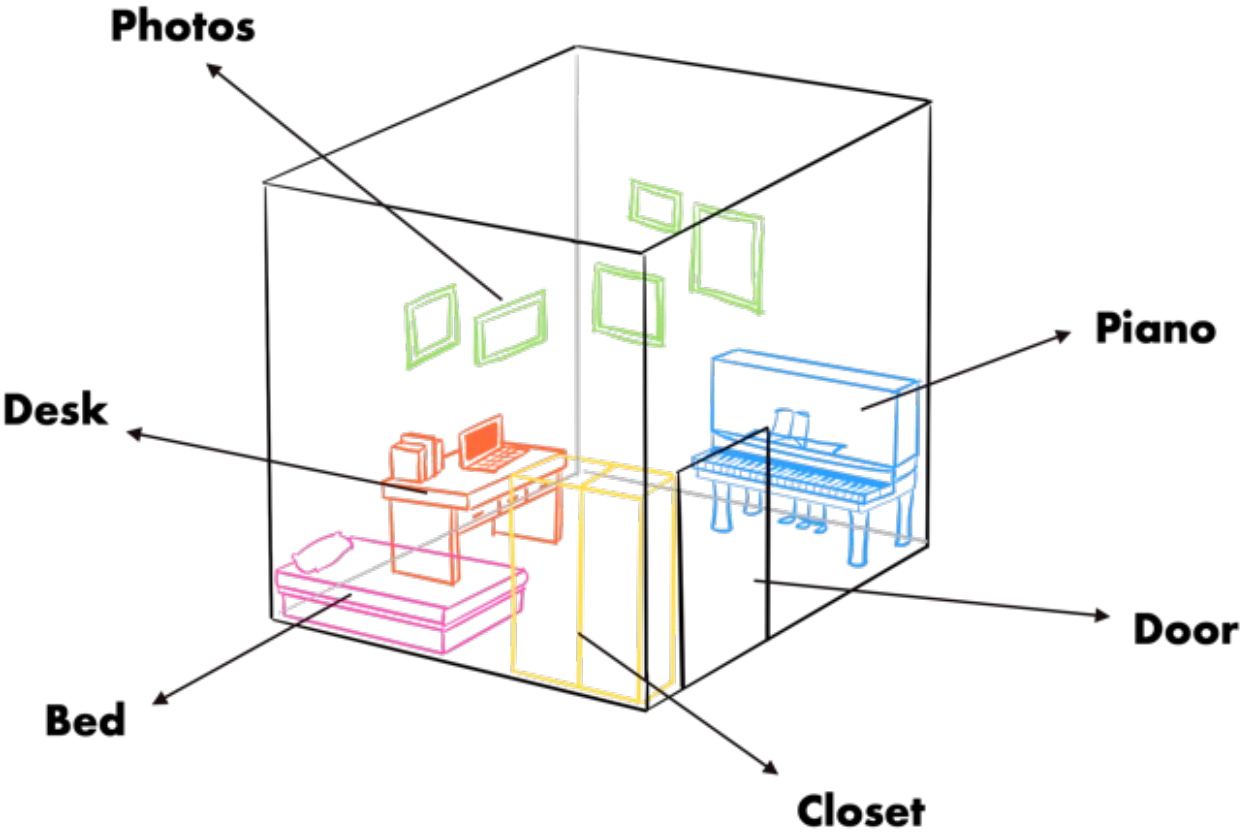

Idea

At first, we present a number of related topics including autism, dementia, bipolar disorder, and LGBTQ. But we finally chose bipolar disorder, because it is the disease that affects the lives of our friends the most (some of our groupmates' friends are suffering from this disease). We want to tell a story through their eyes.

Details

Beginning	Raven received an email from her piano professor that she had to finish a composition for a concert within seven days.
Middle	During the seven days, her severe bipolar disorder made her misinterpret everything, including her composition and her family.
Ending	During the seven days, her severe bipolar disorder made her misinterpret everything, including her composition and her family.

Depression

The way depression manifests itself is through masking. Many bipolar patients are not interested in many of the things around them during periods of depression, so we simply black out the items in the field of vision.

Mania

Bipolar patients in manic periods are extremely hyperactive and they become curious about everything. So we extended the image to include an extra piano keyboard, a higher ceiling in the room, etc.
